KEEP YOUR EYE ON GPI

HEADS UP FOR PROFITS WITH TANK BATTALION...

This newest game from GPI has a straight up monitor which means more play, more excitement and more crowds watching and waiting to play. This latest game challenges every player to destroy the enemy tanks before his own headquarters and tanks are zapped out of action.

The 4-way control lever lets the player drive one of his three tanks around the brick walls and fire at the enemy before his own is blasted. The real excitement comes when he blasts the brick wall to "smithereens" to get at the opponent's tanks The player's tanks fire one shell at a time; the enemy can fire two at a time. There are 20 enemy tanks to destroy to complete the round. However, the round ends abruptly if the player's headquarters is lost...and when his battalion of three tanks is destroyed.

Coming into play at the upper left and right hand corners of the screen, enemy tanks invade the battlefield; and it becomes a real test of a player's skill to zap the enemy before losing his own tanks and headquarters.

Scoring depends on range. A player gets a higher score if an enemy tank is destroyed at close range; and if the hit is frontal. The fewer the enemy tanks, the hotter the fight as the micro processor is geared to increase firing as fewer enemy tanks are on the screen.

So get into the profit range today, and fire off a call to your distributor. With its straight up profile, TANK BATTALION can mean your game profits can go straight up, too.
